

DISCUSSIONS OF ROOSEVELT AND HERRIOT AT END

French Representative Has
Clear Concept of U. S.
Policies

NO "FAST" AGREEMENTS

Herriot Plainly Disappointed
As To Our Debt
Policy

WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 28.—The discussions between President Roosevelt and M. Edouard Herriot, the Frenchman who sacrificed his government upon the issue of France's paying her debt last December, came to an end today.

As was the case with the Anglo-American exchanges with Premier Ramsay MacDonald, no hard-and-fast agreements were reached, but the round French representative will return to Paris with a clear concept of the American government's policies toward most of the troublesome problems to be tackled by the World Economic Conference.

The principal points in this policy are:

1. The United States expects European debtors to pay the debt installment due June 15th, though they may and probably will take advantage of the silver clause in pending legislation. Payment in silver instead of gold will be tantamount to a 30 per cent discount.

2. The United States is willing, even eager, to enter into a tariff truce pending readjustment of tariff on a world-wide basis.

3. The United States is prepared to go the limit in arms reduction in agreement with other powers.

Although plainly disappointed at the American government's debt policy, M. Herriot managed to maintain an attitude of cheerfulness on the eve of his departure.

B. E. F. CAMPAIGN OPENS

Washington, D. C., Apr. 28.—The campaign of the Bonus Expeditionary Force for cash payment of the two billion dollar soldiers' bonus was officially opened today when 25 ex-service men began a personal canvass of the Senate office building urging Senators to vote for the bonus amendment of Senator Robinson, Republican, of Indiana; the farm relief and inflation bills. H. B. Foulkrod, one time legislative agent of the B. E. F., which brought thousands of veterans to the capital last year, was in charge of the "shock troops." Leaders of the new bonus army movement, Foulkrod said, have agreed to postpone the call for an "invasion" of Washington for two weeks. This promise, he said, was made to Louis Howe, secretary to the President, at the White House yesterday.

MILK SITUATION CRITICAL

Harrisburg, Apr. 28.—Central Pennsylvania's milk marketing situation reached critical stages today as one thousand aroused farmers returned to their homes to gird for the strike they threaten to declare unless demands are met by dealers.

Gathering at a mass meeting in the state farm show building here, producers from nine counties, determined upon a course of concerted action in the formation of a state-wide organization to battle for their demands. They approved a form of contract demanding that dealers pay $1.40 per hundred pounds of 3.5 milk. The farmers also agreed to send delegations to court at Harrisburg and Carlisle next Tuesday when hearings will be held on the injunction obtained by the Harrisburg Milk Dealers' Association to restrain local producers from interfering with deliveries of milk in the event a milk strike is called and from obstructing highways and using "violence" in picketing.

REFORESTATION WORK BALANCED WITH PLAY

Specific Hours of Play Will Not Interfere With Tasks

BASEBALL WILL LEAD

(This is the first of a series of three articles by Edward B. Lockett describing the work and play highlights of the youths and men in the new reforestation camps.)

By Edward B. Lockett

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 28.—(INS)—Work in the new reforestation camps and there will be plenty of it—is to be well balanced with play.

No one knows better than army officers, old hands at training large bodies of men, the valuable truth of the old adage, "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Since President Roosevelt ordered the army to take charge of the men while they are in camp, Maj.-Gen. Hugh A. Drum, deputy chief of staff, and his aides, have been busy drafting a recreation program for the new army of labor.

Specific hours for play will be set aside by the army officers in charge of camps, and it will not interfere with the schedule of work. Rather, officials believe, it will add tremendously to the efficiency of the workers.

Baseball will, of course, head the list of sports for the quarter million unemployed city dwellers who are to be given jobs in the healthy outdoors. Each of the camps is to have 200 men in it, under tentative plans.

"Take any group of 200 Americans between the ages of 18 and 25, and if you can't find a dozen ball teams among them there's something wrong," commented an officer who is to head service personnel in one of the western camps.

Secretary of War Dern and Gen. Drum are considering a plan whereby the men would start work early enough in the morning to quit at 4 p. m. This would give them hours of daylight for summer recreation. Plans are still in a state of flux, but officials hope to develop a spirit of rivalry between camps located within a reasonable distance of each other to build up keen competition.

The matter of athletic equipment remains a problem yet unsolved. Army and forest service heads hope much of this will be contributed.

BEER CONTROL BILL FACES DUBIOUS FUTURE

Phase of Local Option Feature Is Opposed By Many

RETAILERS OBJECT TO IT

By William J. Kelly
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Apr. 28.—(INS)—The McClure beer control bill, which has passed the first milestone of the General Assembly, today faced a dubious future.

From all appearances it is the most acceptable plan devised to meet a problem with numerous and varied obstacles, but still its provisions are not in full accord with the views of many legislators whose influence is quite wieldy.

The local option feature of the regulatory measure presents one of the principal stumbling blocks. The bill provides for a referendum not more than once every four years on the question of sale of beer. Outlawing of the sale of beer through a referendum would affect only retailers. They would be denied the right to sell beer until the voters in the particular community reversed their decision. But wholesale distributors could continue operations, selling as small an amount as one bottle.

This in effect would make a wholesale distributor a retailer, except that the beverage could not be consumed on the premises where it is purchased.

Potential retailers object to this form of local option. They point out that it would amount to nothing short of discrimination. Their contention is that the only difference, under provisions of the bill, between a wholesaler and retailer is that the latter would permit consumption on the premises.

Bars are prohibited but beer can be bought and drunk at lunch counters equipped with stationary seats or chairs. These accommodations for persons to sip their beverage in a sitting posture apparently are the only distinction. Thus the bar rail could easily be supplanted by stationary seats. This, it is contended, would bring back the saloon in modified form as long as the room contained 300 square feet and was equipped with tables and chairs for 40 persons.

These are some of the flaws pointed out by House members who propose to make corrections next week. The general complaint that municipalities are now losing revenue daily because of the failure of the General Assembly to agree on the licensing and control bill is without support. Licenses issued under the measure would not be required nor become effective until June 1, although they could be procured before that date. The revenue loss to the state is caused by the delay in enactment of the taxation bill which is now in the Senate.

The Sowers-Conner bill, which was vetoed, had incorporated in it both the licensing and the taxation features. FETE MEN WHO HELPED IN RENOVATING CHURCH

Dinner Served to Group of 34
at Grace Church,
Hulmeville

SOME SHORT SPEECHES

HULMEVILLE, Apr. 28.—In recognition of their services to the parish in assisting to renovate the building and grounds of Grace P. E. Church, a dinner was tendered 34 men at Grace Church parish room last evening.

During the past few weeks the men of the parish have been working diligently, changing lighting fixtures, pews, carpet, etc., at the church; as well as improving the appearance of the exterior by making repairs and planting shrubbery, and the result is most gratifying.

Members of the Girls' Friendly Society, under direction of Mrs. Thomas B. Longhurst, placed before the gathering last evening a tempting old-fashioned menu of: roast beef, mashed potatoes, peas, apple sauce, cole slaw, relishes, rolls, coffee, and pie; and later "smokes" were served. Table decorations were cut flowers.

The toastmaster of the evening was the Rev. James C. Gilbert, rector of the church, who called upon several members of the parish and invited guests for brief remarks. Among those who addressed the assemblage were: the Rev. Charles Lyons, South Langhorne, who as a boy resided with his uncle at Grace Church rectory; the Rev. Waldo D. Parker, Langhorne; William A. Thomas, principal of Langhorne-Middletown high school; Joseph Keen, president of Hulmeville Parent-Teacher Association; Lynn Schatzer, Hulmeville school principal; Thomas B. Longhurst, Richard A. Hopkins, Washington Head.

A suggestion that an organization of men be formed in this vicinity, to sponsor community affairs was enthusiastically received.

MOYER TO GET $25.70

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 28.—Damages to the extent of $420.14 are being sought in a civil suit that went on trial on Wednesday before President Judge Hiram H. Keller in No. 2 Court in which the plaintiff, Swift & Company, of Philadelphia, sued the American Forest Products Company and Maria S. Twining, Philadelphia.

Action started in the civil court after an accident on the Lincoln Highway, near Penn Valley, on March 1, 1932, when three trucks collided in an accident. Stanley Twining was the operator of the Maria S. Twining truck while Louis Germ operated the truck of the American Forest Products Company.

An attorney for the American Forest Products Company argued to the Court that the accident was caused "by one of those drivers who hates to allow anybody to be ahead of him and always wants to be out in front regardless what might happen."

Attorneys on both sides presented their arguments to the jury.

A jury late Wednesday returned a verdict of $3500 in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Blanche and Howard D. Hollingsworth vs. Charles Lownes, of Newtown township. The defendant was directed to pay the costs.

Returning a verdict of $25.70 in favor of the plaintiff in the case of J. Wallace Moyer, of Silverdale, vs. Raymond Leatherman, of Dublin, the trial came to a close Wednesday noon. The original suit was for the sum of $109.70.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer ordered a juror withdrawn and the case continued during the trial of Reuben T. Dunlap vs. Sarah Ann Dunlap.

Intercities Motor Freight Company vs. John Devlin, Sr., a trespass action, will be continued.

The words are: "1850—R. Mitchell, Undertaker."

The letters are approximately 14 inches high. The entire house has been painted three times in the memory of Mrs. Muth, but the advertisement still remains.

Recommends Increase In Newspaper Price

NEW YORK, Apr. 28.—Frank Knox, of the Chicago Daily News, recommended to publishers that the retail price of newspapers be increased to offset the extra cost of publishing he said would result from the proposed inflation.

He spoke at the closing session of the forty-seventh annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. Part of the day's meeting was devoted to the re-election of officers and directors.

In response, some publishers of small daily papers said they had increased the retail price of their papers "without any appreciable loss in circulation."

Urges Churches to End Rivalry in Foreign Fields

An end to "denominational imperialism" by Christian missions in the foreign field was urged as essential to the success of the movement by the Rev. Dr. E. Stanley Jones, noted missionary, author and world traveler, in an address before 1000 laymen and clergymen of many communions last night in the Penn Athletic Club, Philadelphia.

"A new call is sounding in the Church today and the whole missionary program is being re-examined on the basis of its reality," Dr. Jones declared. "If it has no ultimate meaning, we must know and face this conclusion."

"Today missions stand against the exploitation of any man anywhere and are breaking any connection they may have had with the imperialistic motive. The problem of denominational imperialism with its senseless and useless overlapping and scramble for numbers is demanding solution now and should be repudiated as foreign to our religion."

"Beneath the surface we are not divided, and I believe the saints are equally distributed among the various denominations. The united zeal and affection of all of them is necessary if we are to win the non-Christian world."

Dr. Jones addressed a gathering of more than 1400 members of women's missionary societies in the afternoon in the First Baptist Church, 17th and Sansom streets, Philadelphia, describing the leading part being taken by the women of India in the national life of the country and its reform movements.

Dr. Sam Higginbottom, agricultural missionary to India, was guest of honor with Dr. Jones at last night's dinner and described the progress being made toward the elimination of poverty among the natives. The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Schaeffer, president of Philadelphia Federation of Churches, introduced the speakers.

PRESERVE BIRD AND PLANT LIFE

An appeal for the preservation of bird and plant life is made by the Garden Section of the Bristol Travel Club.

It reads:

"Let us preserve the trees, shrubs, plants and vines, beloved by our wild birds, thus conserving both bird and plant life. The birds are true conservationists, and when allowed to live, serve a double good to mankind. They help in destroying harmful insects, and consume large quantities of weed seeds. It is a patriotic duty to save our native wild flowers. They were established here before our country was known. Help save them for all following generations. When gathering wild flowers cut only a few from each plant. Let the rest remain for seed. Do not disturb the roots, and always leave some of the leaves or the plant will die. The roots must be nourished by the leaves for the plant to live.

"When you picnic, spare the wild flowers, the plants and trees. Leave them for others to enjoy as you have done. This is outdoor good manners.

"Our parks and forests as well as our homes deserve from those who enjoy their hospitality good manners."

THE MONROE DOCTRINE

President Roosevelt's definition of the Monroe Doctrine as a "Pan-American doctrine of self-defense" represents the understanding of that policy which his predecessors have sought to convey to the republics of this hemisphere.

The President, addressing the governing board of the Pan-American union, explained that, as directed in the past, it has been aimed only "against the acquisition, in any manner, of the control of additional territory in this hemisphere by any non-American power."

This is the purpose that has actuated the United States in the past in upholding the Monroe Doctrine and which will guide the new administration in its adherence to the latter. The United States has demonstrated conclusively that it has no designs upon the territory of any of its neighbors in this hemisphere. This, however, has not prevented its actions from being regarded with suspicion whenever it has become necessary for it to take a hand in restoring order in a country threatened with anarchy or other conditions liable to cause interference by some European power.

Much of this suspicion is of the synthetic kind. It is manufactured by small anti-American groups to serve their particular purpose. Nevertheless, it has been the cause of considerable trouble in the past. If President Roosevelt's speech serves to make more difficult the work of these elements, an international service of major importance in this hemisphere will have been performed.

The simple truth is that the land would be prosperous still if all men had been honest and truthful.

Split second watches are not yet in demand for use in timing the business pick-up.

Conditions have improved perceptibly. In an eastern city people are examining their $5 bills for counterfeits, something that would have been impossible a year ago.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Faith, comely young orphan, is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy business man. She gives up her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, shiftless young lawyer. Mary Faith believes that loving a man hard enough will make everything come out all right in the end. It was this confidence that enabled her to marry Kim after he had once broken their engagement. She realizes he has an eye for every girl, but hopes that him successful in his profession. Instead, Kim is annoyed at Mary Faith's "Puritanism," and his jazy friends, Claire and Jack Maldon, find her a dull companion. Learning that she is to become a mother, Mary Faith, for the first time, visits Kim's office. Kim is furious when Mary Faith finds him flirting with his blond secretary. That night he informs his mother and Mary Faith that he is leaving. Mary Faith, heartbroken at this turn of affairs, decides not to tell Kim of her coming motherhood. She and Mrs. Farrell decide to struggle to keep the home for the coming baby. Mary Faith obtains a position as typist. She refuses to accede to Kim's request for a divorce and asks him to wait six months before carrying out his desire.

CHAPTER XXVII

It snowed all day on Tuesday, the last of December. The ground was covered with a blanket several inches thick, and there were powder-puffs of feathery snow on the electric light globes that hung on either side of the entrance to the apartment house.

All day Mary Faith had felt tired and drowsy. All day, in obedience to some blind law of nature, she had taken little naps, sitting in her chair beside the dining-room table, as if she were preparing herself for some great ordeal.

"Well, everything is in order now for the baby," Mrs. Farrell said to her late that afternoon when the street lamps were beginning to flash their light out into the pearly winter dusk. "Even the little bed's all made up, isn't it?"

"A year ago today Kim and I were down in Garrettsville," Mary Faith murmured. "I remember we took a walk in the afternoon and there were a lot of little kids coasting down the hill near Aunt Ella's house. I didn't dream then that I'd be having a little baby of my own so soon..."

She stopped, and a look of amazement and pain swept across her face. Hanging on to the edge of the table she pulled herself to her feet. She was halfway to the door of the room when another pain ran over her body like a sheet of flame...

She heard Mrs. Farrell's voice behind her, "Where are you going, Mary Faith?"

She tried to answer her but she couldn't make a sound... She knew where she was going. She was going to the telephone to call up Kim and tell him that he must come to her just as soon as he could...

Then she saw the marks on the wall of the hallway where the telephone box had been. The black twisted wires still stuck out from the plaster, like the roots of burnt trees... She had forgotten that the telephone had been taken away.

"You're in pain, Mary Faith, aren't you?" she heard Mrs. Farrell's voice above the sound in her ears that was like a great flood of waters rushing past her. "I'll run in next door and call Dr. Thatcher—Oh, my dear Lord!"

Darkness closed over Mary Faith. She knew vaguely that someone lifted her to a bed presently. And later on she heard a voice, hoarse with agony, shrieking for Kim—and never knew that it was her own voice. She only knew that the woman who was calling was in terrible agony. Then a sweetish, sickening smell was in her nostrils and she knew nothing more...

A light was shining in her eyes when she opened them. At first she thought she was looking straight into the sun, and then she saw that it was her own little yellow-shaded bed lamp. She was in her own room, in her own bed. She could feel the pillow, soft and cool, against her cheek. She ached all over and she was too tired to move or speak. She closed her eyes again.

Then all at once, someone was bending over her. A man's deep voice was saying, "Are you awake, Mrs. Farrell?"

She looked up. Dr. Thatcher was bending over her and beside him stood Kim's mother. She was holding a small white bundle in her arms, and as Mary Faith tried to lift herself from her pillows, Mrs. Farrell laid it down beside her.

Turning her head, Mary Faith looked at the baby. Here was her love for Kim in the flesh—the little soft body, tender as flower petals and warm as life itself. One hand was curled up tight against the little face, like a tiny pink seashell.

"Well, there's your son, Mrs. Farrell—born just as the bells were ringing in the New Year. What do you think of him?" Dr. Thatcher asked in his brisk hearty way. He backed away from the bed, and beyond him in the shadowy doorway Mary Faith saw Kim.

Kim!... He came toward her and there was a white stony look on his face. He stood beside the bed and suddenly she saw tears spring into his eyes.

"Don't, Kim," she held her hand out to him. "Don't, dearest... Everything's all right."

He knelt down beside her, burying his face in the pillows close to hers. So close that she could smell the faint dry scent of his blond hair. "Your hair—it always smells like birch bark," she murmured weakly and foolishly, and began to cry because she was so happy.

By the middle of February Mary Faith was on her feet again—and not only on her feet but on the very tips of her toes, more eager for life and work and happiness than she had ever been before.

The days were all too short now although she got up at six o'clock every morning when the baby stirred in his little bed and began to shout for his bottle in a voice that to her was the most beautiful sound that was ever heard.

"Listen to our son and his little hunger-song," she would say to Kim as she slipped out of bed and hurried into the kitchen to warm the first little six-ounce bottle of the day. "He's going to be a grand opera singer some day, and don't I know it!"

"Or a radio announcer, at least," Kim would answer drowsily and good-naturedly. He was as proud of the baby as Mary Faith was. Sometimes when she came back from the kitchen she would find him bending over the little bed, touching the baby's cheeks with one of his big fingers and talking to him in a gruff man-to-man way.

"Shut up or I'll bust you one on the beeper—hear me?" he would say. "You make as much noise as a fire whistle. Cut it out."

Every night Kim came home between five and six so that he could see Mary Faith bathe the boy and tuck him into the warm blankets of his bed.

On Easter Saturday he brought home a chocolate rabbit for him, to the enormous amusement of Mary Faith and the horror of Mrs. Farrell. And he bundled him up and took him for an airing on the seat of his car.

"Our life is just the way I always pictured it," Mary Faith said to him that night as they sat in the living room waiting for the Maldons to come over and play bridge with them. "Long before we were married I used to dream of the time when we'd have a home and a baby and friends to come in to spend the evening with us once in a while—and now it's all come true..."

"You'd better rap on wood," Mrs. Farrell spoke up from her chair beside the window. "I always think it's tempting Providence to tell yourself how lucky you are."

Mary Faith laughed. "You're worse than a rainy day, Mother Farrell," she said cheerfully. "Kim and I have had all our bad luck."

She got up and sat on the arm of his chair, rumpling up his hair and twisting it somehow so that he looked utterly unlike himself for a second.

"Haven't we had all our bad luck and all our bad times?" she asked him, her arms around him. "Haven't we come out on the sunny side, and aren't we most—terribly—frightfully happy?" She kissed him between each word and he looked as if he liked it.

They were as much in love with each other these days as they had been during the first year of their engagement, when Kim had wanted no one but her.

He wanted no one but her now. Sometimes the Maldons called up and said that they were coming over to play a few hands of bridge and he would frown and look gloomy when Mary Faith announced the news to him.

"Why don't they stay at home once in a while?" he would ask. "Gosh, I never saw such a pair as those two birds!—In all the time I stayed at their house I never knew them to spend a quiet evening. They were always calling somebody up to come over and make 'hoopla' with them or getting dressed to go to somebody's house for the evening or to go to some place and dance and have dinner..."

It was Claire's fault—Jack's pretty quiet and steady. She drags him around after her like a kid with a Teddy bear."

The Maldons never made much "hoopla" when they came to the flat to spend the evening. For one thing the baby was asleep and they had to keep quiet. And for another Mrs. Farrell always sat in the room and looked over the evening paper while the other four played cards, frowning at them every now and then.

"I don't care very much for that Maldon girl," she told Mary Faith the morning after one of the Maldons' visits. "She gives me the jitters, the way she's always wriggling her shoulders and singing under her breath... And I wonder if she thinks her face looks pretty, all painted up like a signboard!—No, I don't like her."

About a week later Claire popped in one afternoon on her way home from downtown. "Popped in" was the only way to describe the way she came rushing into the flat with her bracelets jingling and the white-tipped tails of her silver fox scarf swaying.

"I can't stay two minutes," she said breathlessly. "I just wanted to bring the baby in a little present. It's a cup and I have his name engraved on it. There's been enough argument about naming him so his Aunt Claire just settled it by having 'Kim' put on the cup."

WHAT A BLOW-OUT!
WE MIGHT HAVE BEEN KILLED

YOU CAN'T BE LUCKY ALWAYS!

Put this Blow-out
Protection on Your Car Right Now!

INVESTIGATION shows that the chances are better than even you'll have a blow-out some day. When, nobody knows. But right now is the time to learn the real cause of blow-outs... and the new way to prevent them.

When you drive 40, 50, 60 and 70—mile after mile—terrible heat is generated inside the tire. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. A blister starts—and grows—bigger and bigger—until BANG! A blow-out! And a terrible drag pulls your car off the road.

New Invention
Prevents Blow-outs

But now Goodrich has created the amazing Life-Saver Golden Ply. This remarkable invention resists intense heat. Rubber and fabric don't separate. Thus, blisters don't form. Blow-outs are prevented by overcoming their cause.

At gruelling speeds on the world's fastest track, the new Goodrich Silvertown, with the Life-Saver Golden Ply, lasted 3 times as long as first quality tires that did not have this feature. These SILVERTOWNS never blew—because the Life-Saver Golden Ply refused to give.

Safer Against Skidding

And that isn't all. Scientific tests show that the Goodrich Safety Silvertown has the most skid-resisting tread on the road. Its squeegee driving action gives your car extra road-grip and reduces danger of skidding to a minimum.

Let us show you this amazing new tire—now made THREE TIMES SAFER! You can put this blow-out protection on your car—at no extra cost. For Goodrich Safety Silvertowns cost not a penny more than other standard tires.

CARDINAL AND GRAY WIN
OVER FALLSINGTON NINE

By Oscar Corn

(B. H. S. Press Representative)
In a baseball game as exciting as any ever played on the local high school diamond, the local Cardinal and Gray team handed the Falls Township nine a 6 to 5 defeat, yesterday.

The game went into an extra inning and ended in a climax just after a grand quarrel which arose between Umpire Bruce, spectators and players. The Cardinal and Gray team gained a two-run lead in the first inning and this they held until the fifth. In the sixth canto the localites again got the lead, but again in the seventh the visitors tied the score, five all. Hibbs came through in the eighth for Bristol with the winning run after Bornice hit.

Many times during the game, Coach Dougherty put men on base by strategic bunts, but the hitters failed in the pinches. In the last inning Hibbs scored on the final bunt by Bornice, which the local mentor called for. Bristol scored their runs during the game in the first, sixth and eighth innings.

In the first canto, after Oppman got on base on Jadlocki's error, Hibbs hit for a round trip which scored two runs.

In the lucky sixth, Oppman singled and then Hibbs and Rockhill got out. Manzo then reached first after he was hit by a pitched ball. Gibson singled and scored Oppman. Bornice hit one through the second baseman and scored Gibson and Manzo.

In the eighth, Hibbs singled, then Reading filled the bases by walking Manzo and Gibson. Bornice bunted and Hibbs scored, while he himself reached first safely.

This victory gives Bristol three wins and one defeat in the Lower Bucks County League.

GOOD weather and a big crowd are all that is required now to make the Horse Show, to be given by the Bristol Riding Club on the Laing Estate in Bristol Township next Sunday, a success.

Every member of the committee for arrangements has worked hard for weeks getting the grounds in readiness for this occasion. In addition to a large ring erected in the center of the grounds, a mile steeplechase track has been laid out and graded, to stage what is hoped to be the most spectacular race ever held here.

Many well known steeplechasers from other clubs will participate in this event, together with several horses from the local stables, Ralph and Clarence Powell, Frank Donnelly, George Wetherill, "Doc" Laing and a few others will have mounts in this race, thus adding lots of local color.

Six beautiful trophies, mounted and appropriate for the affair, have been generously donated by Keystone Dairy Co., Asa Fabian, Robert R. Pearson, Freeman Baylies, Marty Green, and a special cup by the Club.

Ample automobile parking space has been prepared at no additional cost, and will enable ticket holders to witness the events for the small cost of the tickets, with reservations around the ring at a nominal charge for those who care to park cars there.

So we repeat all that is needed is good weather and a large crowd to put this show over in a big way.

County Fire Marshal
Addresses The Grange

taking precautions against the losses by fire. Careful use of matches and other inflammable materials about the buildings, especially the barns, was stressed by Mr. Stackhouse, who during his remarks said a few weeks ago a man said to have been responsible for the many fires in the lower part of the county had been arrested and sent to an institution.

Small attendance at the evening's meeting was because of a great amount of illness in the community.

The literary hour was opened with singing and a reading, "The Farmer's Prayer," by Mrs. Sarah Thompson. Frank Mather at length discussed the question, "What is meant by an honest dollar?" and in order to explain to the members of the Grange what is meant by the honest dollar Mr. Mather gave a large number of statistics and figures in reference to the gold standard.

Mrs. Harriet Jackson briefly answered the question, "Is the old time neighborliness a thing of the past?" In reply she said in a sense that kind of neighborliness is no longer in existence, but it is a well known fact, she said, that if one neighbor meets with misfortune, his other neighbors lose very little time in coming to his assistance.

The next meeting of the Grange on Wednesday evening, May 10, will be featured by an exchange of plants and bulbs.

Reforestation Work
Balanced With Play

Camps will be located near streams wherever possible, and this will provide another much-loved sport—swimming.

For the long, cool evenings in camp there will be indoor games of all sorts, and movies. Cards will be provided, and there will be checkers, dominoes and the inevitable jig-saw puzzles.

In connection with the proposed movie programs, forestry service heads, who will have charge of the actual work of the civil conservation corps, hope to teach the woodcraft tenderfoot much that is valuable to a forester. The service already has on hand 48 movies, ranging from one to four reels each. Another is in the making at the Agriculture Department motion picture division now. They are all designed to give the amateur woodsman the A B C of his craft.

Portable projecting machines will probably make the rounds from camp to camp, and schedules of motion pictures can thus be arranged ahead of time. Officials hope that newsreels and comics will be loaned the new corps by the big companies. Movies are a big attraction on the navy's dreadnaughts, and are expected to provide an important element of the forest corps' recreation.

Giants' New Stars

By BURNLEY

© 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc. Gus Mancuso rights reserved.

WHATEVER the Giants lack this season—did we hear someone holler "pitchers!"—there is no dearth of fighting spirit in Bill Terry's representatives of the Big City. The Giants have a hard row to hoe this season, but it appears that every man is behind Terry and his methods, and that is a great deal.

For the purpose of filling important shoes that were vacated by important men, Terry acquired George Davis, formerly a garden guardian of the Phillies, and Gus Mancuso, erstwhile Cardinal catcher.

Davis is called on to fill the gap left by Freddy Lindstrom, who went to the Pittsburgh Pirates in a cloud of comment, and who there rounds out the greatest outfield in the National League. It is generally conceded that while Davis is less of a natural ballplayer than the slugging Lindstrom, he is no less a handy man to have on any club.

Davis came to the Giants accompanied by a storm of ballyhoo that any man would find difficult to justify. As a matter of fact, Davis was more than merely creditable in his outfield work with the Phillies last season, and batted .309 in the bargain.

New York fans know and like George, too. He was a star athlete at New York University, where he was a popular figure. So far, Davis has shown himself able to handle anything that comes his way, and has compared favorably with the man he succeeds.

Mancuso was the second catcher of the Cardinals only because Jimmy Wilson was on the same team.

He is an unusually able man in the backstop position and will have plenty of work with the Giants. He will share with Richards the job that Shanty Hogan carried all by himself last season.

It cannot be denied that the Mancuso-Richards combination is a decided improvement. Mancuso batted just about the same as Hogan last season, and Richards, who was the star backstop of the Minneapolis team of the American Association, smacked an average of .361. Both Richards and Mancuso can get around a lot faster than the bulky Shanty.

With Davis, a good defense man, and Mancuso, a veteran backstop, Terry has added to the Giants' strength, and the addition could hardly be spared.
